Western Newspaper Union's New Plant at Wichita.

President Cannon Says a Few Words About Irrigation.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

The Tires of a Minister's Bicycle at St. John Cut.

WICHITA, Nov. 26.—The new building of the Western Newspaper Union, corner Emporia avenue and First street, is rapidly approaching completion. Next Saturday the company will commence tearing up at Winfield preparatory to moving into their handsome building in this city. A 45-horse power boiler and engine will supply the power for the plant. The second story will be occupied by the composing rooms and the supply department. The building will be heated by steam and lighted by incandescents.

In the press room four presses will be run constantly in order to serve the 200 papers in Kansas and Oklahoma which are regular patrons of the plant. Altogether there will be over 18 men in the employment of the company at this point. When in complete working order it is said that the plant will be the best auxiliary publishing house in the west. In addition to the furnishing of plate matter, the company will put in a permanent supply house, the only house of the character between Kansas City and Denver.

PRESIDENT CANNON ON IRRIGATION
Says Kansas will have to do it in a different way from Utah.

HUTCHINSON, Nov. 26.—President Cannon of the Mormon church at Salt Lake when asked about the prospects for irrigation in Kansas said:

"I am glad I was able to visit your city and attend your convention and exhibit of irrigation machinery. The people of Kansas will have to irrigate in an entirely different way from that of our people, but I am sure they will find it profitable. The interest taken by your people in this work is a very good sign. I like to see it. It shows to me that now they have started they will never stop until irrigation has been given a thorough test in Kansas."

CUT THE MINISTER'S TIRES.
While He Discussed "Is Sunday the Sabbath?"

St. John, Nov. 26.—Three small boys, Fenton and Everett Staker, about eleven years old, and Carl Stanley, aged fourteen years, were arrested last evening on the charge of cutting the tires on a bicycle belonging to Rev. Mr. Fay, pastor of the St. John church. On Saturday night Mr. Fay was attending a meeting by the Seventh Day Adventists, who discussed the question, "Is Sunday the Sabbath?" and while the minister was in church he left his wheel on the outside.

FOOTPADS IN FORT SCOTT.
They Held Up and Robbed a Man on One of the Principal Streets.

Fort Scott, Nov. 26.—Z. A. Woodward, the proprietor of the Tremont hotel, was held up at the alley on Wall street, between Crawford and Eddy streets, by two footpads. Mr. Woodward was on his way home from the hotel and when opposite the alley was somewhat surprised by the sudden appearance of two men, wearing white handkerchiefs for masks, who covered him with two big guns, and at the same time ordered him to throw up his hands. His hands went up, and the robbers then proceeded to help themselves. Every pocket was emptied and the contents confiscated.

They secured a fine gold watch and chain, a solid gold knight Templar chain and some money. After rifling all of his pockets they ran down the alley toward the Missouri Pacific railroad and disappeared in the darkness.

KANSAS APPLES FOR THE QUEEN.
A Carload Leaves Leavenworth Consigned to the English Royal Family.

LEAVENWORTH, Nov. 26.—Ryan & Richardson, local commission merchants, have had their apple cutting force at work for the last four days, on a carload of Kansas Jonathans and Pippins for the consumption of the royal family of England.

The car of fruit was ordered through London and New York importing and exporting firm, and it left Leavenworth on the Maple Leaf.

The Jonathans in the car were from the famous Wellhouse orchard at Fairmount.

W. P. Hackney to Leave This Week.
WILLIAM P. Hackney, W. P. Hackney will leave Winfield today or tomorrow for his new home in Cleveland, Ohio.

Friday afternoon about thirty members of the Cowley County Bar association met in the district court room to give expression to their feelings of friendship and respect for him. Speeches were made by almost every member of the bar present and a series of resolutions were adopted, praising his ability and character.

Found Dead in Bed.

WICHITA, Nov. 26.—Thomas Wood, a wealthy farmer from near Derby, was found dead in a bed in a hotel here Saturday afternoon. He was drinking heavily and at night started home, but after wandering about all night he turned up here again in the morning and went to bed. At noon he was called, but said he did not want any dinner, and at 3 o'clock, when next seen, he was dead.

A Remarkable Achievement in Railroad Affairs.

Was the running of the Exposition flyer, the famous twenty-hour train between Chicago and New York, via the Lake Shore route, in service during the World's fair. A handsome litho-water-color of this train may be secured by sending ten cents in silver to C. K. Wilber, Western Passenger Agent, Chicago.

THE CHOLERA FUND CASE.

State Health Board Trying to Prove That They Needed the Money.

The hearing of the injunction case, by which an attempt is being made to prevent the state board of health from "grabbing" what is left of the $10,000 cholera fund, is in progress in the district court today before Judge Z. T. Hazen.

Captain J. G. Wate is handling the case for the state and the board of health and Dr. H. A. D. Kees, secretary of the board, is being represented by Judge Frank Foster, F. E. Harkness of Clay Center, Attorney General-elect F. B. Dawes and Assistant Attorney General George W. Clark.

When the case was called this morning Dr. B. D. Eastman, W. S. Lindsey, A. Lewis, F. W. Bailey and H. W. Roby were sworn as witnesses for the state.

Dr. Eastman was the first witness put on the stand, and he testified that to the best of his knowledge there has not been cholera in this country nor any threatened invasion of cholera since two years ago this fall.

On cross examination, Judge Frank Foster produced a copy of "Abstracts from Medical Journals," compiled by the Marine hospital association, and showed that a case of cholera was reported at Jersey City last fall, one year ago.

Dr. W. S. Lindsey said the country is well protected from invasion by cholera by the health boards and quarantine services of our ports of entry and that if there was a threatened invasion of cholera he would know about it inside of 24 hours.

All of the witnesses examined said they relied on the daily newspapers to furnish them with the first information of any invasion or threatened invasion of cholera.

Dr. Lindsey, Dr. Lewis and Dr. Bailey the county coroner, all agreed that there had been no threatened invasion during the year of 1894 and that if there should be, they would know about it inside of twenty-four hours at the outside.

When Dr. H. W. Roby, one of the members of the state board of health was called to the witness stand to testify in the case against the using of the cholera fund, a broad smile spread over the face of Dr. Dykes and Judge Foster looked pleasant for almost a minute.

After Captain Waters asked Dr. Roby if there had been any threatened invasion of cholera in Kansas, or of the United States, during the year 1894, Dr. Roby had answered "No." Judge Foster took the witness for cross-examination.

Dr. Roby said he would not sign a document, in his official capacity as a member of the state board of health, during last year asking the state executive council to allow the use of a part of this cholera fund to prevent cholera effecting an entrance into Kansas.

Dr. Roby said he remembered having signed such a paper, but that he signed it under a misapprehension of the real objects of the matter. He then explained that the gentleman who asked him to sign it represented that as the state board of health and the state executive council do not hold frequent meetings and as cholera might appear, he would be likely to come quickly and should be dealt with quickly it would be the proper thing to have a part of that fund where it could be used in case of an emergency.

Dr. Roby said he afterwards satisfied himself that that was not the real object of the document which he had signed and he would not have signed it had he known its real object.

The state rested its case with the conclusion of Dr. Roby's testimony.

For the defense, Judge Foster first introduced the document he had produced while Dr. Eastman was on the stand, to show that there had been one case of cholera at Jersey City.

He then introduced as evidence letters from the secretaries of the state boards of health of New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Tennessee to show that it is always necessary for boards of health in the interior states to take precautions to prevent cholera. According to these documents this country is liable at any moment to be swept away with cholera. The case has not yet been concluded.

INTERESTS OF THE WEST.

Trans-Mississippi Congress Meets in St. Louis With a Small Attendance.

St. Louis, Nov. 26.—With a whole week before them the delegates of the Seventh session of the Trans-Mississippi congress gathered slowly at Entertainment hall, where their meetings will be held.

At the appointed hour, scarcely more than a fourth of the number in the city were present, though before the welcoming was concluded, 400 or more were present. As the delegates came in one after another of the most interesting were recognized and given their share of attention.

Early came Governor Stone of Missouri and not long after him Congressman W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, who as a silver advocate, will fill the place of T. M. Patterson of Colorado, detained by illness in his family.

FOR LOVELY WOMEN.

Famous Men Who Were Chock Full of Love and Lost Good Judgment.

A large number of the world's eminent men have made fools of themselves for love of women. Holofernes lost his head—in two senses—by accepting the caresses of Judith. Antony was a lunatic to have sacrificed everything to his love of the charming Cleopatra. Paris, son of Priam, ought to have been put in a straight-jacket for having tampered with the matrimonial preserves of Menelaus, the result of which poisoning on his part caused the spilling of oceans of human blood, as well as the destruction of Troy.

Petrarch spent his crazy life penning sonnets to the eyebrows of a poorly married woman, the mother of a large family, while he utterly neglected his legitimate wife and would not permit his daughter to live under his roof.

Dante, in his maddening love of Beatrice says: "No powerful was the spell of her presence that I had to avoid her. From thinking of this most-gracious creature I became so weak and lean that it was ridiculous for my friends to look at me."

Love found ready victims in the knights and troubadours of the middle ages. Ulrich von Liechtenstein, a medieval German cavalier, loved a woman with all the intensity of a lunatic. He used to roam over hills and valleys in quest of other knights, whom he challenged to duels if they dared to doubt that his Dulcinea was the fairest of the fair. On one occasion he amputated one of his fingers and presented it to his patroness as a proof of the torture he could endure for her sweet sake. And meanwhile his wife pined alone in her chateau in the forest.

HUNTERS, LOOK OUT.

The Old Man Proposes to Stop Them in Their Gay Paper Chase.

The old man laid aside his paper and got up with an air of determination.

"I've heard tell of them things," he said, as he got out his white boots and began pulling them on.

"That talers, Headkiah," asked his wife, anxiously.

"Never you mind what things," he returned gruffly. "It ain't nothing for women folks to worry about. Now, Henry, where's that there new pitchfork I bought last week?"

"Out stickin' in the strawstack," replied the boy.

"Get it an' put it by the barn door where I'll be handy," instructed the old man. "Then take the old pitchfork down to the gate to the ten-acre lot and leave it there."

"Merry, Headkiah, what be you goin' to do?" asked his wife, in alarm.

"Don't you fret about me," he answered, as he reached for the old muzzle-loading shotgun that had hung on the wall for twenty years. "I reckon I can't do any damage with this, but it's good to scare folks wild. I'll get the scythe and the axe, too, an' put them at the head of the long lane so's I can get at 'em quick if they come that way. I heard from Hiram, Mirandy, down there by New York, an' he's had his farm all torn up by some of those smart Eastern folks 'bout a week ago. He told me all about it, and arter that I reckon I ain't a man to go to sleep when I see the Western people has got the fever, too, and are preparin' for one of them cross-country paper chases. Not much I ain't."

THE LADY OF THE PLAINS.

She Thought the Young Man Was Drawing the Long Bow.

A young woman from the treeless plains of the West had gone to Boston to a music school on her first trip East, and among the first persons she met at her boarding house was a youth from Bangor. As their acquaintance ripened, she told him of what had interested her on the journey.

"Why," she said, with an exultant spirit, "I saw at one place in Pennsylvania a hundred sawlogs in one pile."

"A hundred?" he asked, with a tinge of a smile.

"That's what they told me. You know, we don't have sawlogs where I come from."

"Is that so?" You ought to come to Maine once."

"Do you have them there?"

"Do we?" he replied magnificently. "Do we? Why, my dear young lady, sawlogs grow on trees in Maine."

"Really?" she asked in open-eyed astonishment.

"It's a literal fact," he asserted positively.

"Well, I don't believe it," she contended, and do what he could, he could not convince her that he was telling plain, unadorned truth.

They Were Numbered.

The sultan poured forth the tender old story in passionate phrases. "You are the—" He paused and pressed his hand to his brow. Turning to his faithful attendant he whispered hoarsely, "I'll trouble you," he said, "for the reading of the trustful How?"

"Oh, yes, thank you. You are—" Again he addressed the blushing maiden he had asked to share his fortune. "The one hundred and thirty-seventh girl I ever loved," which goes to show that all things may be reduced to a system.

One of the most independent poets in the South is Dr. O. T. Dozier of Alabama, formerly of Georgia. In a recently published volume of verses, entitled "Fables of Fancy and Rhymes of the Times," the poet throws down this challenge to the critics:
